this is typically referred to as a percentage that the plan will pay, for example if there is 80 coverage - the insurance plan will pay 80 and you will need to pay the remaining 20.

decreased in the elderly. In patients with a long history of cigarette smoking, the risk of developing COPD is increased. In addition, the elderly are more likely to have comorbidities that can exacerbate COPD, such as heart failure, asthma, and diabetes. The elderly are also more likely to have a decreased ability to cough and clear secretions, which can lead to complications such as pneumonia and respiratory failure. Therefore, it is important to monitor the elderly for signs and symptoms of COPD and to provide appropriate management and support.
