counseling of patients about protective measures necessary to guard against sexually transmitted diseases, including the human immunodeficiency virus hiv should be considered.